

Part 2: Getting your team on board with your road map and turning goals into action plans to create results with less stress

What we will cover today:

- Communicating with your whole team about your mission and road map.
- Turning goals into action plans

   for departments and individuals to create results
   with less stress.

Next week's webinar:

Eliminate bottlenecks to get important work done with greater ease AND create a united team.

Do your team members (board members, staff, key volunteers) know your mission?

- All or most
- Some
- Few
- Not sure

Gallup study on the American workplace:

- Two-thirds are disengaged at work, or worse.
- 51% of full-time employees feel no real connection to their job and don't give it their all.
- An additional 16% are "actively disengaged."

Stanford survey of nonprofit board members

- 27%—colleagues lack understanding of organization's mission and strategy
- Over 50%—colleagues lack understanding of their own roles and responsibilities

Ways to communicate your mission:

- Part of orientation for new staff, volunteers, board members
- Routine all staff meetings
- Smaller team meetings
- Posting where regularly visible
- In regular messaging (online and other communications)
- In email signatures, news releases

Ways to get and keep your mission front and center:

- Include in two-way discussions as well as presentations
- Tie every single job back to the mission
- Share stories that illustrate the mission
- Encourage the team to share actions of coworkers that show the mission in action
- Repeat many times
- Use multiple strategies

Has your organization had an action plan before?

- Yes and it worked for us
- Yes, but wasn't used
- No or not sure

"A goal without a plan is just a wish."

Antoine de Saint-Exupéry

Turn Your Organization's Goals into an Action Plan

Creating an action plan can:

- Enable you to create results with less stress
- Get your team pulling in the same direction

Creating Your Action Plan

Lower tech or higher tech? Which is right for your team?

Low-tech options:

- Worksheets
- Documents you create
- Forms found online

High-tech options:

- Trello
- Asana
- Many others

How to keep the action plans alive – as working, living documents that people use.

- Set periodic review meetings – make them a priority.
- Talk about the goals and actions.
- Encourage people to share progress with the team.
- Reward progress.

Are you comfortable coaching team members?

- Yes, have done so before
- Yes, I think I can do that
- Not sure
- Don't think so

Coaching Tips

- Create clear goals & action steps
- Help with time management
- Talk about next steps
- Ask questions

Develop our own skills and partner with others

Leaders develop skills they lack AND they identify and partner with people who have complementary skills.

"The ability to learn is the most important quality a leader can have."

- Sheryl Sandberg

Keeping your mission the main thing

Your mission has tremendous power to inspire and engage others.

"People are yearning to be asked to use the full measure of their potential for something they care about."

- Dan Pallotta

Next two webinars on Tuning Up Your Organization

You'll learn how to:

- Assess current work and eliminate bottlenecks to get important work done with greater ease.
- Create a united team.
